Stock Dividend

EPIC provides cost effective, value-added turn-key solutions, to under capitalized small companies. The turn-key solutions include exempted transactions from registration of short and long term integrated private and public solicitations of capital that provide a builtin exit strategy.

The EPIC Process enables a qualified private company ("QPC") through a qualified private placement ("QPP") or a qualified merger ("QM") to raise capital at a low cost, in the short and long term, while establishing a built in exit strategy. The exit strategy, at an appropriate time, enables it to become a development stage public company ("DSPC"). The DSPC by becoming a publicly traded company will have a higher intrinsic value then remaining private and provide a basis for raising additional capital at a lower cost.

The QPC, as a DSPC (a publicly traded company), can continue to operate as a private company and is not subject to the limitations and restrictions imposed by the Securities Act of 1933 or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

The EPIC Process generates revenues from one or more the following:

- Tax free exchanges of free trading securities of subsidiaries or affiliated companies for restricted securities of independent start-up or development stage companies, with an option to repurchase the free trading securities;
- The sale of free trading shares of subsidiary or affiliated companies to QPC's for a two to five year promissory note, payable on demand in cash or in Qualified Securities, which include free trading shares of common stock plus one or more series of free trading warrants to purchase free trading common stock; and/or
- Fees earned from the EPIC Process are paid in restricted stock and cash or its Qualified Securities which include free trading shares of common stock plus one or more series of free trading warrants to purchase free trading common stock.

EPIC has a distribution agreement with a company to sell the AcuFAB® MedSoles and AcuFAB® Overlay Support Surfaces, and another company to sell AcuFAB® as a wound healing product. They have also made contact with a manufacturer in New York that can use AcuFAB® to produce incontinence pads with a barrier and an absorbent pad that are also washable and dry-able.
